REQUEST FOR RECONSIDERATION

Pursuant to 37 C.F.R. §2.64(b) and TMEP §1110, Applicant submits this Request for Reconsideration in response to the office action mailed January 5, 2010 regarding the referenced application for the mark TUNGDRILL, the subject of Application Serial Number 77/691,645. Applicant hereby submits additional arguments and new evidence in support of its position that its mark is entitled to registration. In addition, Applicant notes that a Notice of Appeal in this application is being simultaneously filed with the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board.

REMARKS

The Examiner previously issued an office action refusing registration of the proposed mark TUNGDRILL on grounds that the mark merely describes a purpose, feature and/or function of Applicant's cutting tools, and therefore, cannot function as a trademark. Applicant responded to the Examiner's objection in a responsive communication, filed December 8, 2009, in which Applicant requested that the refusal to register be withdrawn because (1) the Examiner had not proven that TUNGDRILL was descriptive and (2) the mark in its entirety was suggestive of the cutting tools. The Examiner now has issued a subsequent office action maintaining and making final the refusal to register the mark on the same grounds raised in the initial office action. Applicant hereby responds maintaining and expanding upon its position that the refusal to register the mark in its entirety should be withdrawn because the mark is at most suggestive of its cutting tools.

A. TUNGDRILL is Not Merely Descriptive

As noted in Applicant's previous responsive communication, the well-established test for determining whether a term is merely descriptive, or whether it is suggestive and therefore deserving of trademark protection, is set forth in Stix Products, Inc. v. United Merchants & Mfrs., Inc., 160 U.S.P.Q. 777 (S.D.N.Y. 1968):

A term is suggestive if it requires imagination, thought and perception to reach a conclusion as to the nature of the goods. A term is descriptive if it forthwith conveys an immediate idea of the ingredients, qualities or characteristics of the goods.

Id. at 785 (emphasis added). This determination should be made considering the goods for which registration is being sought and the context in which the mark is being or will be used. In re Abcor Development Corp., 558 F.2d 811, 200 U.S.P.Q. 215 (C.C.P.A. 1978); In re Remacle, 66 U.S.P.Q.2d 1222 (T.T.A.B. 2002). In addition, one must bear in mind that it is the perspective of the relevant class of purchasers that will determine the descriptiveness, or lack thereof, of a mark. See Omaha National Corporation, 819 F.2d 1117, 2 U.S.P.Q.2d 1859 (Fed. Cir. 1987). See also In re Nett Designs, Inc., 36 F.3d 1339, 1341, 57 U.S.P.Q.2d 1564, 1566 (Fed. Cir. 2001) (stating that the standard for determining descriptiveness is set by the relevant purchasing public.). Any doubt as to the descriptiveness or suggestiveness of a term must be resolved in favor of the applicant and in favor of publication of the mark. See In re Grand Forest Holdings Inc., 78 U.S.P.Q.2d 1152 (T.T.A.B. 2006); In re Grand Metropolitan Foodservice Inc., 30 U.S.P.Q.2d 1974 (T.T.A.B. 1994).

1. Examiner Has Not Proven Descriptiveness

Pursuant to §1209.02 of The Trademark Manual of Examining Procedure, Fifth Edition (revised September 2007) the Examiner has the burden of proving that Applicant's mark is merely descriptive of the goods or services it identifies. Ibid. (noting that an Examiner must support a refusal to register on descriptiveness grounds with appropriate evidence). The Examiner herein continues to rely on the results of a query for "What does TUNG stand for?" using the online resource acronymfinder.com. Applicant has questioned the reliability of this evidence given the disclaimer included on the web site, but to the extent that the Trademark Office considers such evidence reliable in part, as the Examiner has noted with respect to initialisms and abbreviations, such terms can only be deemed descriptive if they have become widely understood to represent descriptive words such that they are viewed as synonymous with the descriptive words. See Modern Optics, Incorporated v. The Univis Lens Company, 110 U.S.P.Q. 293, 295 (C.C.P.A. 1956); see also Racine Industries Inc. v. Bane-Clene Corp., 35 U.S.P.Q.2d 1832, 1838 (T.T.A.B. 1994); and Intel Corporation v. Radiation Incorporated, 184 U.S.P.Q. 54, 56 (T.T.A.B. 1974).

The Examiner's additional evidence does not show that "tung," is descriptive of Applicant's cutting tools or that "tung" is widely understood to be synonymous with "tungsten." The print out of the search results from acronymfinder.com provided by the Examiner includes the following statement "This definition appears very rarely...." Applicant's own search of the online dictionary resource dictionary.com disclosed only one entry for the term "tung" which is defined as "Chinese bearing seeds that yield tung oil." "tung." Dictionary.com. WordNet® 3.0. Princeton University. <http://dictionary.reference.com/browse/tung> (accessed: April 15, 2010). See attached Exhibit A. Further, searching of the term using the Google® search engine revealed 31,600,000 results. See attached Exhibit B. Out of the first 500 references, there is use of the term as a family name, company name, the name of a band, the name of a university, and even the name of a hotel, but no use of the term as an abbreviation for "tungsten." The Examiner's additional evidence submitted in support of the position that "tung" is an abbreviation for "tungsten" also includes evidence of use of the term as the name of a mine. In view of the above, Applicant respectfully asserts that the term "tung" is not commonly or widely accepted or understood to be synonymous with the term "tungsten" and the Examiner's evidence is insufficient to show that the component TUNG is descriptive of the goods.

For the reasons discussed above, Applicant respectfully submits that the refusal of registration under Section 2(e)(1) should be withdrawn.

2. Applicant's Mark is Suggestive

As noted earlier, a term is deemed suggestive, rather than merely descriptive, if it does not immediately alert the purchasing public of an ingredient, quality, characteristic, or feature of the goods or services for which the mark is used, but instead requires mental pause, thought, conjecture, or imagination to determine the significance of the term as used with the goods or services. See In re Shutts, 217 U.S.P.Q. 363 (T.T.A.B. 1983). As the Examiner sets forth in the final refusal, descriptiveness must take into consideration the relevant goods and services to which the mark will be applied. Applicant contends that when Applicant's goods, and the circumstances surrounding the sale and marketing of the goods, are considered, at most, its mark TUNGDRILL is suggestive of its cutting tools for the reasons set forth below.

Applicant's mark is a unitary mark comprised of the components TUNG and DRILL. The resulting designation, TUNGDRILL, indirectly, rather than immediately, conveys information about Applicant's cutting tools. As discussed above, the Examiner has not shown that the component TUNG incorporated in Applicant's mark is a commonly used, recognized, and understood synonym for the term "tungsten." Absent a showing that TUNG is synonymous with "tungsten" and that "tungsten" is descriptive of cutting tools, the term TUNG cannot be considered descriptive of Applicant's goods.

Applicant respectfully contends that TUNGDRILL in its entirety is suggestive of the goods because it does not immediately convey a feature, ingredient or characteristic of the goods to which it is applied. Some amount of thought and imagination are required to determine the nature of Applicant's products. See In re Tennis in the Round, Inc., 199 U.S.P.Q. 496,498 (T.T.A.B. 1973). It is Applicant's intent to establish a TUNG family of product names as evidenced by its allowed applications for other TUNG formative marks in the Trademark Office mentioned in Applicant's previous responsive communication. These mark will always appear in close proximity to Applicant's company name, Tungaloy. The component TUNG- in the marks mirrors the use of TUNG- in the company name. In view thereof, it is more likely that potential purchasers would perceive the component TUNG- as an abbreviation of the company name, thereby immediately associating the product with its source. The purchasing public would not associate the term TUNG- incorporated in Applicant's mark as a synonym for the term "tungsten" because "tung" is not widely recognized or understood to be an abbreviation of "tungsten." Thus, when potential purchasers encounter Applicant's mark in the marketplace, they would have to go through a series of mental steps, requiring imagination, thought and perception to reach a conclusion as to the precise nature of Applicant's goods and the significance of the mark in connection with the goods. The relevant purchasers would not encounter Applicant's product and make an association between Applicant's mark and Applicant's cutting tools without such mental exercise.

Other than its intended use as Applicant's mark, TUNGDRILL has no meaning or significance in the English language or in the marketplace and therefore cannot be descriptive of the goods. Moreover, Applicant is aware of no other product identified as TUNGDRILL in the relevant industry other than its own product. Applicant's mark is a word combination which indirectly conveys information about Applicant's products in that it is suggestive of the source of the product, Tungaloy Corporation.

As mentioned above, Applicant has applied for U.S. registration of a few marks incorporating TUNG, an abbreviation of Applicant's company name, for related goods. Information about these allowed applications is set forth below and copies of the TARR printouts for each record are attached as Exhibit C.

Word Mark	Serial Number	NOA issued	Goods
TUNGTURN	77691679	10-06-2009	IC 007: Cutting tools for use with power operated machines, namely, turning tools and cutting inserts therefor
TUNGTHREAD	77691674	10-06-2009	IC 007: Cutting tools for use with power operated machines, namely, threading tools and cutting inserts therefor
TUNGREC	77691669	10-06-2009	IC 007: Cutting tools for use with power operated machines, namely, milling tools and cutting inserts therefor
TUNG MILL	77691659	10-06-2009	IC 007: Cutting tools for use with power operated machines, namely, milling tools and cutting inserts therefor
TUNG CUT	77691638	10-06-2009	IC 007: Cutting tools for use with power operated machines, namely, grooving tools, parting tools, turning tools, blades and cutting inserts therefor

Applicant submits that the allowance of the applications for Applicant's other TUNG formative marks, similar in construction to the proposed mark, by the Trademark Office without objection, further illustrates that the component TUNG is not widely perceived or understood as an abbreviation of "tungsten." Also, Applicant respectfully asserts, by allowance of these marks, the Trademark Office has decided that these marks are arbitrary or at the very least suggestive of the goods described in the respective applications, and therefore, are capable of serving as trademarks entitled to federal registration. The proposed mark TUNGDRILL is no less suggestive than Applicant's other marks listed in the above table, and is therefore, also capable of serving as a trademark, and is entitled to federal registration.

In view thereof, Applicant respectfully submits that the refusal of registration under Section 2(e)(1) should be withdrawn.

B. Additional Information As Requested

The Examiner has requested additional information regarding the nature of Applicant's goods, specifically whether Applicant's goods are made of tungsten steel. Applicant hereby responds that the goods to which the mark is applied are comprised of a compound that includes carbide (which is made with carbon and tungsten), cobalt and other materials with properties which impact the heat resistance, strength and wear of a product.

Applicant having now addressed all concerns raised by the Examiner believes that this application is now in condition for approval for publication and such action is hereby requested.

Request for Reconsideration after Final Action

To the Commissioner for Trademarks:

Application serial no. 77691645 has been amended as follows:

ARGUMENT(S)

In response to the substantive refusal(s), please note the following:

REQUEST FOR RECONSIDERATION

Pursuant to 37 C.F.R. §2.64(b) and TMEP §1110, Applicant submits this Request for Reconsideration in response to the office action mailed January 5, 2010 regarding the referenced application for the mark TUNGDRILL, the subject of Application Serial Number 77/691,645. Applicant hereby submits additional arguments and new evidence in support of its position that its mark is entitled to registration. In addition, Applicant notes that a Notice of Appeal in this application is being simultaneously filed with the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board.

REMARKS

The Examiner previously issued an office action refusing registration of the proposed mark TUNGDRILL on grounds that the mark merely describes a purpose, feature and/or function of Applicant's cutting tools, and therefore, cannot function as a trademark. Applicant responded to the Examiner's objection in a responsive communication, filed December 8, 2009, in which Applicant requested that the refusal to register be withdrawn because (1) the Examiner had not proven that TUNGDRILL was descriptive and (2) the mark in its entirety was suggestive of the cutting tools. The Examiner now has issued a subsequent office action maintaining and making final the refusal to register the mark on the same grounds raised in the initial office action. Applicant hereby responds maintaining and expanding upon its position that the refusal to register the mark in its entirety should be withdrawn because the mark is at most suggestive of its cutting tools.

A. TUNGDRILL is Not Merely Descriptive

As noted in Applicant's previous responsive communication, the well-established test for determining whether a term is merely descriptive, or whether it is suggestive and therefore deserving of trademark protection, is set forth in Stix Products, Inc. v. United Merchants & Mfrs., Inc., 160 U.S.P.Q. 777 (S.D.N.Y. 1968):

A term is suggestive if it requires imagination, thought and perception to reach a conclusion as to the nature of the goods. A term is descriptive if it forthwith conveys an immediate idea of the ingredients, qualities or characteristics of the goods.

Id. at 785 (emphasis added). This determination should be made considering the goods for which registration is being sought and the context in which the mark is being or will be used. In re Abcor Development Corp., 558 F.2d 811, 200 U.S.P.Q. 215 (C.C.P.A. 1978); In re Remacle, 66 U.S.P.Q.2d 1222 (T.T.A.B. 2002). In addition, one must bear in mind that it is the perspective of the relevant class of purchasers that will determine the descriptiveness, or lack thereof, of a mark. See Omaha National Corporation, 819 F.2d 1117, 2 U.S.P.Q.2d 1859 (Fed. Cir. 1987). See also In re Nett Designs, Inc., 36

F.3d 1339, 1341, 57 U.S.P.Q.2d 1564, 1566 (Fed. Cir. 2001) (stating that the standard for determining descriptiveness is set by the relevant purchasing public.). Any doubt as to the descriptiveness or suggestiveness of a term must be resolved in favor of the applicant and in favor of publication of the mark.

See In re Grand Forest Holdings Inc., 78 U.S.P.Q.2d 1152 (T.T.A.B. 2006); In re Grand Metropolitan Foodservice Inc., 30 U.S.P.Q.2d 1974 (T.T.A.B. 1994).

1. Examiner Has Not Proven Descriptiveness

Pursuant to §1209.02 of The Trademark Manual of Examining Procedure, Fifth Edition (revised September 2007) the Examiner has the burden of proving that Applicant's mark is merely descriptive of the goods or services it identifies. Ibid. (noting that an Examiner must support a refusal to register on descriptiveness grounds with appropriate evidence). The Examiner herein continues to rely on the results of a query for "What does TUNG stand for?" using the online resource acronymfinder.com. Applicant has questioned the reliability of this evidence given the disclaimer included on the web site, but to the extent that the Trademark Office considers such evidence reliable in part, as the Examiner has noted with respect to initialisms and abbreviations, such terms can only be deemed descriptive if they have become widely understood to represent descriptive words such that they are viewed as synonymous with the descriptive words. See Modern Optics, Incorporated v. The Univis Lens Company, 110 U.S.P.Q. 293, 295 (C.C.P.A. 1956); see also Racine Industries Inc. v. Bane-Clene Corp., 35 U.S.P.Q.2d 1832, 1838 (T.T.A.B. 1994); and Intel Corporation v. Radiation Incorporated, 184 U.S.P.Q. 54, 56 (T.T.A.B. 1974).

The Examiner's additional evidence does not show that "tung," is descriptive of Applicant's cutting tools or that "tung" is widely understood to be synonymous with "tungsten." The print out of the search results from acronymfinder.com provided by the Examiner includes the following statement "This definition appears very rarely..." Applicant's own search of the online dictionary resource dictionary.com disclosed only one entry for the term "tung" which is defined as "Chinese bearing seeds that yield tung oil." "tung." Dictionary.com. WordNet® 3.0. Princeton University. <http://dictionary.reference.com/browse/tung> (accessed: April 15, 2010). See attached Exhibit A. Further, searching of the term using the Google® search engine revealed 31,600,000 results. See attached Exhibit B. Out of the first 500 references, there is use of the term as a family name, company name, the name of a band, the name of a university, and even the name of a hotel, but no use of the term as an abbreviation for "tungsten." The Examiner's additional evidence submitted in support of the position that "tung" is an abbreviation for "tungsten" also includes evidence of use of the term as the name of a mine. In view of the above, Applicant respectfully asserts that the term "tung" is not commonly or widely accepted or understood to be synonymous with the term "tungsten" and the Examiner's evidence is insufficient to show that the component TUNG is descriptive of the goods.

For the reasons discussed above, Applicant respectfully submits that the refusal of registration under Section 2(e)(1) should be withdrawn.

2. Applicant's Mark is Suggestive

As noted earlier, a term is deemed suggestive, rather than merely descriptive, if it does not immediately alert the purchasing public of an ingredient, quality, characteristic, or feature of the goods or services for which the mark is used, but instead requires mental pause, thought, conjecture, or imagination to determine the significance of the term as used with the goods or services. See In re Shutts, 217 U.S.P.Q. 363 (T.T.A.B. 1983). As the Examiner sets forth in the final refusal, descriptiveness must take into consideration the relevant goods and services to which the mark will be applied. Applicant contends that when Applicant's goods, and the circumstances surrounding the sale and marketing of the goods, are considered, at most, its mark TUNGDRILL is suggestive of its cutting tools for the reasons set forth below.

Applicant's mark is a unitary mark comprised of the components TUNG and DRILL. The resulting designation, TUNGDRILL, indirectly, rather than immediately, conveys information about Applicant's cutting tools. As discussed above, the Examiner has not shown that the component TUNG incorporated in Applicant's mark is a commonly used, recognized, and understood synonym for the term "tungsten." Absent a showing that TUNG is synonymous with "tungsten" and that "tungsten" is descriptive of cutting tools, the term TUNG cannot be considered descriptive of Applicant's goods.

Applicant respectfully contends that TUNGDRILL in its entirety is suggestive of the goods because it does not immediately convey a feature, ingredient or characteristic of the goods to which it is applied. Some amount of thought and imagination are required to determine the nature of Applicant's products. See In re Tennis in the Round, Inc., 199 U.S.P.Q. 496,498 (T.T.A.B. 1973). It is Applicant's intent to establish a TUNG family of product names as evidenced by its allowed applications for other TUNG formative marks in the Trademark Office mentioned in Applicant's previous responsive communication. These mark will always appear in close proximity to Applicant's company name, Tungaloy. The component TUNG- in the marks mirrors the use of TUNG- in the company name. In view thereof, it is more likely that potential purchasers would perceive the component TUNG- as an abbreviation of the company name, thereby immediately associating the product with its source. The purchasing public would not associate the term TUNG- incorporated in Applicant's mark as a synonym for the term "tungsten" because "tung" is not widely recognized or understood to be an abbreviation of "tungsten." Thus, when potential purchasers encounter Applicant's mark in the marketplace, they would have to go through a series of mental steps, requiring imagination, thought and perception to reach a conclusion as to the precise nature of Applicant's goods and the significance of the mark in connection with the goods. The relevant purchasers would not encounter Applicant's product and make an association between Applicant's mark and Applicant's cutting tools without such mental exercise.

Other than its intended use as Applicant's mark, TUNGDRILL has no meaning or significance in the English language or in the marketplace and therefore cannot be descriptive of the goods. Moreover, Applicant is aware of no other product identified as TUNGDRILL in the relevant industry other than its own product. Applicant's mark is a word combination which indirectly conveys information about Applicant's products in that it is suggestive of the source of the product, Tungaloy Corporation.

As mentioned above, Applicant has applied for U.S. registration of a few marks incorporating TUNG, an abbreviation of Applicant's company name, for related goods. Information about these allowed applications is set forth below and copies of the TARR printouts for each record are attached as Exhibit C.

Word Mark	Serial Number	NOA issued	Goods
TUNGTURN	77691679	10-06-2009	IC 007: Cutting tools for use with power operated machines, namely, turning tools and cutting inserts therefor
TUNGTHREAD	77691674	10-06-2009	IC 007: Cutting tools for use with power operated machines, namely, threading tools and cutting inserts therefor
TUNGREC	77691669	10-06-2009	IC 007: Cutting tools for use with power operated machines, namely, milling tools and cutting inserts therefor

TUNG MILL	77691659	10-06-2009	IC 007: Cutting tools for use with power operated machines, namely, milling tools and cutting inserts therefor
TUNG CUT	77691638	10-06-2009	IC 007: Cutting tools for use with power operated machines, namely, grooving tools, parting tools, turning tools, blades and cutting inserts therefor

Applicant submits that the allowance of the applications for Applicant's other TUNG formative marks, similar in construction to the proposed mark, by the Trademark Office without objection, further illustrates that the component TUNG is not widely perceived or understood as an abbreviation of "tungsten." Also, Applicant respectfully asserts, by allowance of these marks, the Trademark Office has decided that these marks are arbitrary or at the very least suggestive of the goods described in the respective applications, and therefore, are capable of serving as trademarks entitled to federal registration. The proposed mark TUNGDRILL is no less suggestive than Applicant's other marks listed in the above table, and is therefore, also capable of serving as a trademark, and is entitled to federal registration.

In view thereof, Applicant respectfully submits that the refusal of registration under Section 2(e)(1) should be withdrawn.

B. Additional Information As Requested

The Examiner has requested additional information regarding the nature of Applicant's goods, specifically whether Applicant's goods are made of tungsten steel. Applicant hereby responds that the goods to which the mark is applied are comprised of a compound that includes carbide (which is made with carbon and tungsten), cobalt and other materials with properties which impact the heat resistance, strength and wear of a product.

Applicant having now addressed all concerns raised by the Examiner believes that this application is now in condition for approval for publication and such action is hereby requested.
